Ask your MP to support an amendment to help stop forced abortion in Xinjiang, China:

There is extensive evidence that many women in the Uyghur Muslim community in Xinjiang, China are being subjected to forced abortions. Lord Alton is currently championing an amendment to the Trade Bill which would give British courts a role in determining whether a country is committing genocide. This would help with putting international pressure on the Chinese Communist Party to stop the practice of forcing abortions on the Uyghur Muslim community along with the wider human rights abuses that evidence shows is being perpetuated against this community. If you would like to email your MP asking them to support the amendment, you can do this easily using a tool which has been set up on the Genocide Response campaign website which can be accessed by visiting the link below:

5th Sunday Year B

First Reading: Job 7:1-4; Ps.146; Sec. Reading: 1 Cor. 9:16-19; 22-23, Gospel Mark 1:29-39

The Problem of Evil and Suffering!

The book of Job was written between the seventh and eighth centuries B.C, but it sounds like it might have been written yesterday or last year. We all know people who suffer personally without apparent hope, and perhaps we ourselves have felt that way from time to time. We have experienced moments when life seems more like an absurdity than a priceless gift from God. Covid-19 is our clear example today. Nobody is sure of the direction and there seems to be no light at the end of the tunnel. And we ask the question, but where is God? We pray, and even prayers seem to mock us.

Someone said: (God does not offer a bed of roses. He offers a world with ups and downs, but a world in progress. He will set us in a thousand disparate places, places where we are needed, and asks us to be true. He will not babysit us, shield us from pain. He will lead us through pain, loneliness, frustration, searching, to the strong, gentle wisdom he alone can create in us)

We Christians are often accused of being so preoccupied with life after death, that we seem not to know how to live this life. And we do not know how to tell others how to live it either. But Christianity is not, must not be, a life-negating religion. Jesus did not come to take the joy out of life. He brought good news. Life is a gift of God, who loves and cares for each of us. It makes little sense to worry about the life to come in another world if we are not serious about learning how to live in this world. (My command is, love one another ...) But how can we find meaning and self-fulfilment? Certainly not without some positive human relationships with others in our families, communities, parishes. Not without friendship, compassion, and concern for others, especially for the needy and lonely. No person's life is a failure if he or she has learned how to love and sacrifice for others.

In today's gospel, Jesus is our model, overflowing with pity and compassion, healing the sick, dispelling demons, proclaiming the good news of God's love for all. Apart from him and his example and never-ceasing grace, life can indeed be absurd and meaningless. Suffering is part of life. Someone has said that suffering is not a problem to be solved, but a mystery to be lived. Jesus alone can give insight into that mystery. But he wants us to have trust, faith, and confidence in him and in our loving.

Being a follower of Christ is risky because Christianity makes some frightening demands upon us. But then, is it possible to find any kind of meaning for life without risk and pain? The alternative is to be like Job: sitting on his manure pile, feeling sorry for himself, in self-pity situation. But Job persevered and came through in the end because he learned how to trust in God. We can do the same - even more effectively, because, unlike Job, we have Jesus who is our Love, our Way, our Life, and our Hope.

Please pray for The Sick and Housebound of our Parish:

Caroline Dickinson, Dina Kuczynski, Mary Kean, Mary Gallagher, Rohith De Silva, Joe Shannon, Mick Breslin, Julian and Martine. Get Well Soon.
